RESPONSE OF THE UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE
TO DAVID B. POPKIN INTERROGATORY

DBP/USPS-566. Please refer to your response to Interrogatory DBP/USPS-477. Please confirm, or explain if you are unable to confirm, that if a PO-PO Next Day Express Mail article was sent from post office A on a Monday and it arrived at the window at the destination post office B at 4 PM Monday it would count as being delivered in zero days even though it arrived six hours after the 10 AM guaranteed delivery time.

RESPONSE:

Confirmed that, in the calculation performed in order to respond to DBP/USPS-287, part (d), a PO-PO Next Day piece that arrived at the destination post office on the same day as which it was entered would have been calculated as being delivered in 0 calendar days. Such a piece would have met its service guarantee, which would be 10 AM on the day after entry.
