Dear Sir:

It was our hope that when Louis DeJoy became US Postmaster General, that he would do a good job of streamlining the postal system and make good choices by making our valued system more efficient. Unfortunately, he appears to want to dismantle and slow down this important service which so many Americans rely and depend on.

I have not found a single person who agrees with what he is doing. I hope you will help stop the slow down of the postal service and abide by what the majority of the people want. If it is not broken, don't fix it.

Sincerely yours

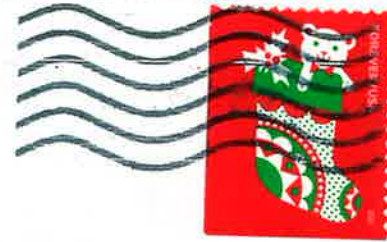

Susan G. Rosier
