POSTAL REGULATORY COMMISSION

Dear Fellow Citizens:

It is my understanding that you represent the American people as a whole in assuring that our vitally important postal service remain strong and effective,

Director Louis DeJoy does not seem to honor that purpose. There is ample evidence that, apparently without effective opposition from you, he is crippling the postal service that is so important to Americans for a wide range of reasons. I consider his position reprehensible and believe you should replace him with someone who is committed to the fundamental mission of the postal service and effective in empowering it.

The postal service was established as our national government was taking shape. It is vitally important to an enormous number of Americans, and I plead with you to take your job seriously and give citizens the postal service which is, in effect, part of our "birth right" as Americans.

With hope for effective change and gratitude for your service –
