

DECISION OF THE GOVERNORS OF THE UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE ON THE RECOMMENDED DECISION OF THE POSTAL RATE COMMISSION
ON POSTAL RATE AND FEE CHANGES, DOCKET NO. R2001-1

April 8, 2002

On March 22, 2002, the Postal Rate Commission issued its Recommended Decision in Docket No. R2001-1. As the Commission noted in its Opinion, this rate case marks a “remarkable chapter in the history of postal ratemaking.” PRC Op. R2001-1, p. 11. The Recommended Decision adopts the Stipulation and Agreement signed by almost all of the participants in the proceeding before the Commission.¹ This settlement shortened the usual litigation period and allows the new rates and fees to become effective on June 30, at least three months earlier than the otherwise expected effective date. In this difficult time for the Postal Service, implementation on June 30 provides additional revenues that will assist the Postal Service in meeting its obligations. The Commission’s Opinion summarizes the events that led to this “remarkable chapter” and we need not repeat them here. PRC Op. R2001-1 at i-ii, 1-16.

The Governors have concluded that the Commission’s recommendations will help maintain fair and equitable postal rates and fees, and a fair and equitable mail classification system, and are in accord with the policies of the Postal Reorganization Act. Therefore, we approve these changes.

The Governors would like to echo the Commission’s commendation of the participants for their cooperation in fashioning the settlement. PRC Op. R2001-1, at 16. We would also add our praise of Commission Chairman George Omas and his fellow Commissioners for exhibiting outstanding leadership that inspired the participants to come together collaboratively.

¹ Of the 63 participants, 57 signed the stipulation and agreement, five did not oppose it, and only one party, the American Postal Workers Union (APWU), opposed it.

As provided under 39 U.S.C. § 3625(c)(2), we approve the Recommended Decision. By resolution, the Board of Governors has today set June 30, 2002, as the effective date of all but one (“electronic” option for return receipt service) of the changes in rates, fees, and mail classification.

STATEMENT OF EXPLANATION AND JUSTIFICATION

THE SETTLEMENT

The settlement agreement in this case represents an extraordinary and unprecedented accomplishment. In recommending it, the Commission has carried out its responsibilities under the Act to assess the settlement proposals independently, and to consider the particular circumstances of this case. These circumstances support and reinforce the Commission’s recommendations. The Commission’s approach falls within its authority to consider non-unanimous settlement proposals.² The Commission has appropriately assessed the changes it recommends against the legal standards embodied in the Act, in light of the factual record before it under the settlement agreement.

In applying what it calls the technical standards of compliance, the Commission has confirmed independently that the rate and fee proposals would meet the Postal Service’s revenue needs, as estimated in its filing. It has also determined that the recommended rates and fees would recover costs attributed to each class, subclass, and special service. Where the Postal Service’s filing has departed from the methodologies or approaches previously endorsed by the Commission, it has specifically identified those differences, has corrected claimed deficiencies, and has applied the methodologies and approaches most recently employed in the previous omnibus rate case, Docket No. R2000-1.³ It has further evaluated the settlement rates and fees against legal and technical standards and relationships among mail and special service categories that are reflected in existing rate and fee schedules.

² The Commission’s authority and limitations in considering settlement proposals are outlined in the Postal Service’s Brief to the Commission (pp. I-1 – I-12).

³ The Commission specifically highlights its treatment of revenue estimates, volume forecasts, and cost attribution. PRC Op. R2001-1 at 28-36.

We strongly agree with the Commission's findings that the special circumstances of this case justify approving the settlement agreement. The Commission has given substantial weight to the Postal Service's current financial and operational needs and circumstances, in light of the extraordinary national events during September and October of last year and subsequently. PRC Op. R2001-1, at 24, 41-45. It has concluded that public interest and postal policy considerations substantially support its endorsement of the settlement rate and fee proposals. In reaching these conclusions, it has considered the level of agreement among participants, timing, complications associated with updating the Postal Service's revenue needs, rate stability, and the trade-off between the financial effects of early implementation and higher rate levels from updating. We agree with and amplify the Commission's conclusions that these considerations support the adoption of the settlement.

As the Commission noted, as a result of the near-unanimity of the settlement agreement, many factual issues typically contested in omnibus rate proceedings were resolved by stipulation among the parties, and no extensive evidentiary record contesting the Postal Service's case was created. Id. at 29, 33, 39, 40. The Commission therefore evaluated the rates it recommends by comparing them to the currently prevailing rates as a primary basis for its conclusion that they are in accordance with the policies of the Act.

Our authority under the Act to approve the Commission's recommendations entitles us to rely on its findings and reasoning as well as the entire record before us and the Commission. Apart from the Commission's analysis, we find that the results in this proceeding are also supported by the stipulations embodied in the settlement agreement. The agreement adopts the record filed by the Postal Service as providing substantial evidence for establishing the rate, fees, and classification changes embodied in the settlement agreement. While we agree that the Commission's findings were reasonable, we have concluded that the record created by the Postal Service's filing and subsequent proceedings, as incorporated in the nearly-unanimous settlement agreement, provides an alternative basis for concluding that the rates, fees, and classification changes are supported by substantial evidence and comply with applicable legal standards.⁴

Finally, with regard to APWU's challenge to the settlement, the Commission has assessed the settlement agreement for First-Class Mail as a proposal on the merits, in light of the conflicting factual presentations on the record before the Commission and the parties. As explained below, we agree that the Commission has appropriately taken into account the relevant considerations in reviewing APWU's position. We also agree with its conclusions that the settlement agreement for First-Class Mail meets applicable legal standards and ratemaking principles, that it is consistent with Commission precedent, and that it is justified by current circumstances.

APWU's Challenge to the First-Class Mail Settlement

APWU alone opposed the settlement, challenging the presort/automation rates for First-Class Mail letters and the discount recommended for Qualified Business Reply Mail (QBRM). The Commission carefully analyzed APWU's testimony, arguments, and alternative proposals, and concluded that they did not provide a reasonable basis for departing from the settlement agreement. The Commission further reviewed the settlement proposals and found them consistent with applicable standards. We approve the recommended settlement rates.

In First-Class Mail, the rates embodied in the settlement agreement deviate only slightly from the rates originally proposed by the Postal Service in its Request. The small differences reflect the results of settlement negotiations, in which the parties compromised on slightly larger discounts for 3- and 5-digit presorted automation letters, and on maintaining the current discount for QBRM. These differences are insignificant, when compared to the rather considerable revenue benefit to the Postal Service that results from early implementation, in accordance with the Board of Governors resolution that accompanies our Decision here. In this regard, the settlement is a testament to the willingness of postal customers and competitors to set aside their conflicting economic interests for the greater good — a more stable national postal system at a time of financial uncertainty exacerbated by acts of terrorism.

⁴ The Postal Service's Brief and Reply Brief to the Commission provide extensive citations to the evidentiary record and argument supporting the settlement results.

As described fully in the Commission's Opinion, APWU opposed the settlement discounts on policy grounds related to purported inconsistencies with economic and management principles and with the Commission's precedent. PRC Op. R2001-1, at 64-67. Relying on Postal Service estimates of avoided costs, APWU complained that the discounts were larger than the costs that would be avoided through mailer worksharing. It maintained that this circumstance conflicted with principles enunciated by the Commission in prior proceedings, specifically Docket No. MC95-1. APWU also proposed alternative rates founded on its preferred approach of only recognizing discounts between 80 and 100 percent of cost savings. The Postal Service and other parties contested APWU's position, relying on the record created by the Postal Service's filing, as well as alternative analyses. Analyses submitted by intervenors in surrebuttal testimony were based on critiques of Postal Service estimates of avoided costs, as well as application of Commission methodologies. Id. at 67-71.

While not disavowing the views it expressed in previous cases, the Commission repudiated APWU's conclusion that the principles the Commission has espoused would invalidate in all instances discounts that exceed measured cost avoidance. Id. at 72-73. The Commission noted that consideration of other factors could justify discounts greater than avoided costs, and it cited testimony in the current evidentiary record supporting the proposed rates in that respect. Id. The Commission concluded, however, that, as a result of settlement, the record was not fully developed on this issue. The Commission therefore elected not to rely on any measure of avoided costs on the record, including the Postal Service estimates adopted by APWU. Accordingly, it declined to recommend the specific rates APWU proposed.⁵

In assessing the First-Class Mail discounts embodied in the settlement proposals, the Commission used current rates adopted in Docket No. R2000-1 as its primary points of reference. It reasoned that, if the proposed discounts were comparable in magnitude to previously approved rates that satisfied the requirements of the Act, they would also stand scrutiny under applicable standards. Id., at 75-76, 77-78. Making this comparison, the ⁵ The Commission also found that the rates proposed by APWU would violate the break-even standard embodied in 39 U.S.C. § 3621. Id. at 49.

Commission concluded that the settlement rates could be recommended. It further justified its finding in light of the particular circumstances of the current case and the benefits of settlement. Id. at 76.

We believe that the Commission's approach was reasonable, was adequately explained, and supports its recommendations. In this regard, we agree with the Commission that, under the unique circumstances of this case, the relationship between the instant proceeding and the recently concluded Docket No. R2000-1 provides an independent and persuasive policy basis for recommending the First-Class Mail workshare rates proposed in the Stipulation and Agreement.⁶

We also note that the Stipulation and Agreement incorporates the conclusion by all signatories that the Postal Service's testimony provides substantial evidentiary support for the proposed First-Class Mail rates.⁷ The settlement agreement, furthermore, was opposed only by APWU, which itself adopted Postal Service cost estimates as the basis of its testimony. In this regard, we understand the Commission's decision to defer judgment on the measure of costs avoided until a more complete record can be developed. We believe, however, that the Commission could have based its First-Class Mail discount recommendations upon the substantial record testimony presented by the Postal Service, including Postal Service testimony that justified the discounts in light of all pertinent ratemaking considerations. We therefore find that the existing record provides an alternative basis for concluding that the settlement rates meet applicable standards.

We also concur with the Commission's conclusion that a reduction in the QBRM discount of the magnitude advocated by the lone settlement opponent could have an immediate, negative impact on the users of that service, and would be unfair and inequitable. Id. at 78-79. Under the circumstances of this proceeding, retention of the current discount is appropriate.

⁶ We note that the Commission made its first recommendations in Docket No. R2000-1 in the fall of 2000. Its conclusions in this case were provided less than 18 months later. Given the elapsed time between the test years in Docket Nos. R2000-1 and R2001-1 (FY 2001 and FY 2003, respectively), and the state of the record, we do not believe that the Commission's conclusion was unreasonable.

⁷ We fully acknowledge and agree that the settlement imposes no precedential effect. See Postal Service Brief, at I-17-18.

DUE PROCESS

Beyond the merits of its proposals, APWU has argued that the Commission failed to honor its due process rights. In its Brief to the Commission, it argued that it needed more time, and an opportunity to conduct discovery, to respond to certain surrebuttal testimony that parties other than the Postal Service submitted to refute APWU's witness Riley. APWU Brief at 23. The Commission appropriately rejected these arguments. PRC Op. R2001-1, at 9-12. We agree with the Commission that there has been no due process violation.

Fundamentally, the Commission concluded that it could recommend the proposed First-Class Mail rates, even if the surrebuttal testimony had never been filed. It noted the Postal Service's argument that the Commission could have avoided any conflict over alternative methodologies in the surrebuttal testimony altogether by relying on the costing methodology followed in Docket No. R2000-1 that underlies current rates. Id. at 12. We agree with that conclusion. Ultimately, the Commission elected not to rely on any measurement of costs avoided on the record, and it rejected APWU's proposed rates on grounds other than those expressed in the intervenors' surrebuttal testimony. Id. at 12, 74.

We agree with the Commission that APWU received all the process it was due. It had the right to cross-examine all the Postal Service's witnesses, even though it did not take full advantage of this right. Id. at 7. We further agree with the Commission that its modified procedural schedule "fairly balanced the needs for expedition with the due process rights of all participants," (Id. at 11), and that the purpose of the disputed surrebuttal testimony was to rebut APWU witness Riley's testimony. Id. at 12. Finally, we agree that APWU's unfamiliarity with the existing costing methodology from Docket No. R2000-1 does not give rise to a valid claim of deprivation of due process. Id. Accordingly, we concur with the Commission's decision to reject the

APWU's due process claims in their entirety.⁸

RATES AND FEES

As discussed below, we approve the rates, fees and classification changes recommended by the Commission. All percentage rate increases and cost coverages discussed below are expressed in terms of Postal Rate Commission costs, as reflected in PRC Op. R2001-1, Appendix G, Schedule 1.

Express Mail

The rates requested by the Postal Service for Express Mail match those in the Stipulation and Agreement and have been recommended by the Commission. The recommended rates reflect a 9.4 percent average increase for the subclass and a cost coverage of 184.0 percent. In addition, the Commission recommended the proposed pick-up fee (which also applies to Priority Mail and Parcel Post pick-up). We also approve the Express Mail classification changes recommended by the Commission.⁹

Priority Mail

The Priority Mail rates recommended by the Commission mirror the rates contained in the Stipulation and Agreement, which are identical to the rates initially requested by the Postal Service. As recommended by the Commission, the average rate increase for Priority Mail is 13.5 percent. The one-pound rate for Priority Mail would increase from $3.50 to $3.85. The recommended Priority Mail cost coverage would be 159.5 percent. The Commission also recommended the Postal Service's classification proposal to tie the rate for Priority Mail flat-rate envelopes to the one-pound Priority Mail rate, rather than to the two-pound rate, as in the ⁸ Reply Brief of the United States Postal Service, at 13-18.

⁹ We note that in formulating its recommendations on Domestic Mail Classification Schedule language pertaining to Express Mail guarantees, the Commission substituted language conforming to a proposed Postal Service implementation regulation and omitted one additional provision. PRC Op. R2001-1, at 57-58. We believe that a better approach would have involved current rate design. The Commission also favors the Postal Service's proposal to re-zone Priority Mail rates for the two-to-five-pound weight increments. We approve the recommended Priority Mail rate and classification changes.

First-Class Mail

As discussed earlier, the Commission recommended the First-Class Mail rates incorporated in the Stipulation and Agreement, which deviated in several minor respects from the rates proposed in the Postal Service's Request. The Commission recommended an average rate increase of 7.7 percent for First-Class Mail Letters and Sealed Parcels and an average rate increase for First Class Mail Cards of 9.7 percent. The resulting cost coverages are 192.0 percent and 142.6 percent, respectively. The rates for basic letters and cards would increase from 34 cents and 21 cents, respectively, to 37 and 23 cents. The Commission also recommended the establishment of the First-Class Mail classification changes requested by the Postal Service and incorporated in the Stipulation and Agreement. We approve the recommended rate and classification changes.

Standard Mail

The Commission recommended the settlement rates for all Standard Mail subclasses. For the Regular and Nonprofit subclasses, the Commission recommended a rate increase of 7.5 percent, and a 135.1 percent cost coverage. For Enhanced Carrier Route and Nonprofit Enhanced Carrier Route subclasses, the Commission recommended a rate increase of 6.2 percent, and a 201.0 percent cost coverage. The recommended rates mirror those requested by the Postal Service, with the exception of a few minor changes occasioned by the settlement. Section 39 U.S.C. § 3626 provides that the rates for nonprofit subclasses should be equal, as nearly as practicable, to 60 percent of the estimated average revenue per piece to be received from the most closely corresponding commercial counterpart. Recommended rates in both Standard Mail nonprofit subclasses meet the statutory requirements of generating an average revenue per piece as close as possible to 60 percent of the average revenue per piece from their respective commercial counterparts. We accordingly accept the recommended Standard Mail rates. The Commission recommended the four classification changes for Standard Mail notice and comment on the substitution and omission prior to the Recommended Decision.

that were incorporated in the Stipulation and Agreement. The Commission also recommended a clarifying provision for carrier-route letters that do not meet automation requirements. We approve the Commission's Standard Mail classification recommendations.

Periodicals

For the Outside County subclass, the Commission recommended the settlement rates, resulting in an average increase of 10.3 percent and a cost coverage of 101.3 percent. For Within County publications, the Commission recommended the settlement rates, resulting in an average increase of 1.7 percent, and a 100.2 percent cost coverage. We accept the recommended rates. For both subclasses, the Commission recommended the classification changes incorporated in the Stipulation and Agreement. We accept these classification changes.

Package Services

The Commission has recommended the Parcel Post subclass rates incorporated in the Stipulation and Agreement, which differ only slightly from the rates originally requested by the Postal Service. Overall, the recommended settlement rates result in an average increase of 6.4 percent and a cost coverage of 114.1 percent. The differences between the requested rates and the settlement rates result in a reduction of approximately one-half of one percent of test year revenues for the subclass and have no significant effect on Parcel Post cost coverage. The Commission also recommended the classification changes proposed by the Postal Service and embodied in the settlement. We find these changes to be supported by record evidence and in accordance with the policies of the Act. We therefore approve them.

The Commission has recommended the Bound Printed Matter settlement rates, which mirror the rates originally requested by the Postal Service. The settlement rates represent an average increase of 9.0 percent and reflect a cost coverage of 124.1 percent. The Commission also recommended the classification changes incorporated in the Stipulation and Agreement. We find these changes to be in accordance with the policies of the Act and, therefore, approve them.

Consistent with recent amendments to 39 U.S.C. § 3626, the Postal Service collects cost data for the Media Mail and Library Mail subclasses on a consolidated basis and rates for Library Mail are set at 5 percent lower than the rates for Media Mail. The Commission has recommended the settlement rates for these subclasses, which mirror the rates originally requested by the Postal Service. Calculated separately, the average rate increases for Media Mail is 4.0 percent, and Library Mail is 3.3 percent. The combined cost coverage for the two subclasses is 109.6 percent. The Commission also has recommended the two classification changes embodied in the Stipulation and Agreement. We also approve these changes.

Special Services

The Commission has recommended the fees for the various special services, as well as for permits and licenses, which are incorporated in the Stipulation and Agreement, producing an average fee increase of 11.4 percent. We accept the fees recommended by the Commission. We also approve the Commission's recommendations of the classification changes for special services. One of the recommended classification changes is for the establishment of a new "electronic" option for return receipt service, which would provide secure electronic notification of delivery, including a copy of the recipient's signature. As noted in the Board of Governors' resolution establishing June 30, 2002, as the effective date for the changes adopted in this Decision, the new electronic version of return receipt service will be implemented at a later time, to allow for technological development related to offering this new Internet-based service.

ESTIMATE OF ANTICIPATED REVENUE

The statute (39 U.S.C. § 3625(e)) requires that our Decision include an estimate of anticipated revenue. Since we are allowing the rates and fees recommended by the Commission to take effect, we are relying on the revenue estimates provided by the Commission. The Commission calculates that its recommended rates will produce $74.750 billion in revenue in the test year. We note, as did the Commission, that circumstances have changed drastically since the original projections underlying this revenue estimate were produced last summer. We therefore expect that actual cost and revenue results in Fiscal Year 2003 will differ more substantially – and more adversely -- than normal from those underlying the Commission's recommendations.

ORDER

In accordance with the foregoing Decision of the Governors, the changes in postal rates and fees and in mail classification attached hereto and incorporated herein are hereby approved and ordered into effect. In accordance with Resolution 02-7 of the Board of Governors dated April 8, 2002, all but one of the changes will take effect at 12:01 a.m. on June 30, 2002. As further specified in the Resolution, the new electronic option for return receipt service will take effect at a time and date to be determined subsequently by the Board of Governors, in accordance with the Board's judgment concerning the Postal Service's readiness to provide this option.

Accordingly, all of the attached rate, fee, and classification changes will take effect on June 30, 2002, except for the changes to Fee Schedule 945 related to the electronic option for return receipt service.

By The Governors:

For purposes of determining Periodicals rate eligibility, an "issue" of a newspaper or other periodical shall be deemed to be a separate publication when the following conditions exist:
