procedures yet need to be worked out between the Postal Service and Capital

One. This caveat must be kept in mind for the following responses.

- a. Yes. The PERMIT system will allow the collection of Capital One volume, per article III(J) of the Agreement. ACS data will be able to provide the number of most forwarded Capital One pieces. However, this would not include pieces forwarded locally or those forwarded from a destination delivery unit not covered by a CFS unit; there is no practical means of counting such pieces.
- b. Yes. The PERMIT system will allow the collection of Capital One volume, per article III(J) of the Agreement. ACS data will be able to provide the number of destroyed Capital One pieces.
- c. Yes. The PERMIT system will allow the collection of Capital One volume, per article III(J) of the Agreement. Capital One and the Postal Service will work out prior to implementation how to ensure an accurate report of the number of pieces of mail that are returned to Capital One.
- d-e. In part because the Commission has yet to issue any recommended decision on the pending NSA Request, these details have not been determined.
- f-g. No; this NSA is about Capital One, not other mailers so there is no basis for reporting the behavior of other mailers. That does not mean, however, that the implementation of Change Service Requested, Option 2, will preclude all comparisons of Capital One with system wide measures.

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that I have this day served the foregoing document upon all participants of record in this proceeding in accordance with section 12 of the Rules of Practice.
